

NEILL'S PIER OFFICE 1896 BANGOR CO. DOWN

E ORIGIN STORY

On the shores of Bangor, County Down, industry once met the Irish Sea.

In the late 1800s, ships laden with coal arrived from across the water, bringing warmth, work, and a spark of progress to the town.

At the heart of it all was Robert Neill - a name that became synonymous with Bangor's growth and its enduring spirit of graft and ingenuity.

More than a century later, we found ourselves inspired by that same story - the story of something great beginning from something modest.

Like the old coal runs that once fuelled this coastal town, our journey began small: early starts, long runs, and a drive to bring people together.

Today, that same spirit burns bright here, to fuel connection, conversation, and community. Each drink we craft nods to Bangor's industrious past while celebrating the creativity and warmth of the present.

So, raise a glass - to the coast, the craft, and the coal that started it all.

E ORIGIN STORY

Tommy's Margarita originated in 1998 when Julio Bermejo created it as his family restaurant, Tommy's, in San Francisco. The cocktail was named after the restaurant and was a modern twist on the classic margarita, replacing orange liqueur with agave nectar, letting the tequila and lime shine through rather than being masked by sweetness or citrus liqueur.

This version replaced orange liqueur with agave nectar, letting the tequila and lime shine through rather than being masked by sweetness or citrus liqueur.

E ORIGIN STORY

The Guinness origin story begins with Arthur Guinness leasing the abandoned St. James's Gate Brewery in Dublin, Ireland, on December 31, 1759, for an unusual 9,000-year lease. He initially brewed ale, but later, in 1778, began producing a dark, popular beer called porter. By 1799, he stopped brewing ale altogether to focus solely on porter, which eventually evolved into the modern Guinness Draught Stout.

The London Essence story began in 1896 on the banks of the River

Thames, where the original firm developed exquisite essences for high-end perfume houses. Today, the modern company apply their distillation techniques to create a line of premium mixers inspired by this innovative heritage, focusing on crafting low-calorie, low-sugar drinks using distilled botanical essences that complement the flavor of spirits rather than masking them.
